Where appropriate, information concerning a child may be obtained from or with the knowledge and consent of a parent, guardian, school or other authorized person.

ECF does not intend to publicly disclose sensitive assessment information, family financial circumstances, home addresses, private educational records or similar confidential beneficiary information.

DONATION & REFUND POLICY

Ernest Chianumba Foundation

Donation & Refund Policy

Effective Date: May 2026

1. Our Commitment

Ernest Chianumba Foundation is committed to responsible stewardship of the resources entrusted to us.

Donations help ECF advance its charitable mission, including programs relating to education, care, humanitarian support and opportunities for individuals and communities in need.

2. Online Donations and Paystack

Online donations made through the ECF website are processed using Paystack, a third-party payment service provider.

Paystack facilitates the payment transaction and, subject to its applicable procedures, settles funds to the bank account designated by the Foundation.

Payment methods available to individual donors may vary depending on location, currency, Paystack functionality and other factors.

ECF does not intend to directly collect or store complete payment-card details entered through Paystack's payment interface.

3. Donations

All donations are voluntary.

Donors are responsible for ensuring that the donation amount and payment information entered are correct before completing a transaction.

ECF may use unrestricted donations where they are reasonably needed to advance the Foundation's charitable purposes.

Where ECF expressly accepts a donation subject to a specific restriction or designated purpose, the Foundation will seek to apply those funds accordingly.

If circumstances make the designated purpose impracticable or impossible, ECF may contact the donor where appropriate or handle the funds in accordance with applicable law and the Foundation's governance obligations.

4. Donation Confirmation and Receipts

Following a successful online donation, donors may receive an electronic payment confirmation or receipt through Paystack and/or ECF.

ECF may also maintain transaction records for accounting, donor acknowledgment, financial reporting and compliance purposes.

A donation receipt or acknowledgment should not automatically be interpreted as confirmation that a donation qualifies for a particular tax deduction or benefit in any jurisdiction. Donors should obtain independent tax advice where necessary.

5. Refunds

Because charitable donations are generally intended as final gifts, donations are ordinarily non-refundable once successfully processed.

However, ECF will review refund requests involving circumstances such as:

- an accidental duplicate donation;
- an incorrect donation amount;
- an unauthorized transaction; or
- another genuine payment error.

Requests should be made as soon as reasonably possible after the transaction.

Where a refund is approved, ECF may process the refund through Paystack and, where possible, return funds to the original payment method.

Refund timing and availability may depend on Paystack, the donor's financial institution, the payment method and other factors outside ECF's direct control.

Approval of a refund is subject to verification, applicable law, payment-provider requirements and whether the funds have already been committed or applied to charitable activities.

Nothing in this policy limits any refund or other right that a donor may have under applicable law.

6. Fees and Currency Conversion

Paystack, banks, card networks or other financial-service providers may apply transaction, processing, currency-conversion or other charges in connection with a donation.

The amount ultimately charged to a donor or received by ECF may therefore be affected by applicable fees, exchange rates or payment-provider rules.

Any fees imposed directly by a donor's bank or payment provider are outside ECF's control.

7. Failed, Reversed or Disputed Payments

A donation may occasionally fail, be reversed or become subject to a payment dispute or chargeback.

ECF may work with Paystack, relevant financial institutions and the donor to investigate and resolve such transactions.

Where necessary, ECF may provide appropriate transaction records or other information to Paystack or relevant financial institutions for fraud prevention, dispute resolution and payment administration.

8. Fraud and Unauthorized Transactions

If you believe a donation was made fraudulently or without your authorization, please contact ECF promptly and notify your bank or payment provider where appropriate.

ECF may cooperate with Paystack, financial institutions, payment networks and lawful authorities in investigating suspected fraudulent transactions.

9. Financial Stewardship

ECF maintains financial records and governance procedures intended to promote responsible administration and accountability for funds entrusted to the Foundation.

Information about our programs and impact may be published periodically through our website and other official Foundation communications.
